Want to shape individual lives forever? Here's what you need to know...

About Secondary Teaching in two years

Teaching is a great job. You have a chance to work with young people, days are varied and you have the opportunity to work as a valued team member.

But teaching is more than a job, it is a great career. There are many career pathways that may include transitioning from being a teacher to curriculum specialist to head of department to deputy principal to principal and beyond.

Yes, teaching is a great career but more than that, it is a calling. Teachers make a significant contribution to the lives of the people that they come in contact with, especially the young people in their classes. It is no wonder that the NSW Department of Education and Training has as its main logo... Teach and make a difference.

There is no better place to learn to be a teacher than Avondale College. This teaching course is designed for people that already have a bachelor degree and want to change careers. Avondale's Bachelor of Teaching (Secondary) degree revolves around in-depth classroom practice and professional experience throughout the two-year course and now all of this course can be studied via long distance education. Graduate students feel equipped to teach full-time in their own classroom and they are inspired to be responsible and positive Christian role models in the contemporary workplace.

Career Options

This course enables graduate teachers to be employed by various state, independent and private secondary schools across Australia, New Zealand and countries around the world. In particular, there is an increasing demand for Christian teachers to be employed in expanding Christian school sectors in Australia and New Zealand.

Secondary Teaching provides opportunities for employment in:

- Secondary Teaching
- Leadership and Administration
- Tutoring
- Special Education
- Library Teaching

In addition to education related careers, teachers can often find careers in the corporate world where organisational, relationship and human management skills are valued.

Subjects include:

Education subjects that focus on learning theory, behaviour management, assessment, use of Information Technologies and others, Curriculum Studies, Professional Experience subjects including real world classroom experience and Christian Studies and an Education Elective are also included for personal and professional development.

Secondary Teaching Specialisation

Students that received an average mark of 75% or greater in their undergraduate course have the opportunity to develop their research skills through an honours program. If students wish to do the honours program, it will take an extra semester.
